The little girl didn't notice all the festivities around her: the carousel, the petting zoo, the magician twisting balloons into animals. On this sunny afternoon in Charlotte, she was mesmerized by a jester spinning a multicolored ball on his finger. When she asked if she could try it, he transferred the ball to her. It twirled on her finger just long enough for her to jump and cheer, "I did it!"

Magic moments were in abundance at the September christening of Caleb Axel Latimer Knight, son of Sally and Steve Knight and grandson of Sarah Belk Gambrell. Mrs. Gambrell, daughter of Belk department stores founder

William Henry Belk, welcomed 100 adults and 75 children to her Eastover home for a spectacular celebration. Sikky Rogers and Angela Gala, who have planned many special events for the Belk family through their company Rogers & Gala Creative Partners Inc., designed and organized the party.

The Belks, Knights, Gambrells and their friends were ready for festivities following the christening at Myers Park Presbyterian Church.

A musical carousel that the children rode all afternoon provided the party theme. Guests received a numbered watercolor print of the carousel by artist Serena Apostol as an invitation; it hinted at the
